

Sport

Apart from skiing (although you can snowshow in nearby Carpegna), there is not a single sport that you cannot practice in Rimini and surroundings, from kite surfing to rock climbing, from beach tennis to mountain biking. Rimini is synonymous with movement: the ceaseless creativity and continuous circulation of ideas, as well as physical training and keeping fit. In every season, you can find the ideal solution to satisfy your desire to move, whether outdoors or indoors, from sunrise to sunset. Let's start with the sea. At the sea and on the beach, at any time of the year, you can truly indulge in various activities. You can try stand-up paddle, surfing, kite, sailing, and of course, swimming. On the sand, there is a constant rotation of beach volleyball, beach tennis, and beach basketball courts. In beach clubs you often find whirlpools, well-equipped gyms, spinning bikes, and at all times of the day - especially at sunrise - functional training, pilates, and yoga sessions. During the months when the beach is free from umbrellas, the shoreline becomes a destination for walks, Nordic walking, and running. Likewise, the promenade is a huge open-air gym, with people running, cycling, stretching, and enjoying the Parco del Mare, the long cycle-pedestrian waterfront inaugurated in 2020, equipped with fitness areas, Technogym equipment, and a colorful basketball court.

Like the new waterfront, the Piazza sull'Acqua near the Tiberius Bridge has become a gathering place for sports enthusiasts. There you can engage in activities surrounded by greenery, with dirt paths, water walkways, and terraces dedicated to yoga.

Rimini couldn't be without a tourist port, and the Marina di Rimini is one of the most beautiful in the Mediterranean, with 622 boat moorings and a water surface exceeding 100,000 square meters. It accommodates boats up to 45 meters in length and offers a truly spectacular horizon stroll.

The dozens of kilometers of bike paths allow you to traverse the city safely, and if you move inland, you can have a great time on mountain bike or gravel trails, engage in trekking or sport climbing on walls overlooking the sea. This territory is ideal for cycling tourism: from the coast, you can quickly reach the hills and even tackle more challenging climbs. It's no wonder that the network of bike hotels was born here, offering exclusive services for professionals and amateurs.

By covering short distances, you can reach Monte Carpegna (where Marco Pantani used to train), the Sasso Simone and Simoncello Natural Park, and the nearby Monte San Bartolo Regional Park, between Gabicce Mare and Pesaro, a hilly area with trails accompanied by stunning panoramas.

Just a few kilometers from the city, there are two golf courses, the Rimini-Verucchio Golf Club and the Riviera Golf Resort, both with 18 holes, as well as a beautiful international equestrian center like the Horses Riviera Resort.

Let's not forget that this is also the land of motorsports, and just a few minutes from Rimini, the spectacle of the MotoGP takes place at the Misano World Circuit Marco Simoncelli, which hosts races and international competitions throughout the year, in addition to the MotoGP Grand Prix.
